New Publication: Special Edition Using Oracle R11i

BOSS Corporation and Project Partners, LLC Author New Book

Half Moon Bay, CA, September 2001 – A new book has just been published “Special Edition Using Oracle R11i” by BOSS Corporation. Project Partners, LLC has authored the Oracle Projects chapter within this new book.

Project Partners, LLC and BOSS Corporation have recently joined forces as Alliance partners. Having worked on implementations jointly, Project Partners, LLC adds the Oracle Projects expertise to a wide range of Oracle implementation services offered by BOSS Corporation.

“This new book is a result of the on going alliance between Project Partners and BOSS Corporation. Both companies have roots in the development building blocks of today’s Oracle software modules, and provide our mutual clients with powerful, cost effective solutions. We have seen great results from our cooperative efforts to date, and expect this book will be well received by Oracle users everywhere.” Randy Egger, President and Founder, Project Partners, LLC.

Project Partners, LLC developed the Oracle Projects chapter of this new book for implementation teams who may not be very familiar with Oracle Projects R11i. The goal of this effort was to offer an internal implementation team the ability to go “from zero to Conference Room Pilot” with the instructions, tips and techniques outlined by Project Partner’s expert consultants.

“Our working relationship with Project Partners has developed to a point where we thought it useful to ask them to write a significant chapter in our latest book edition. In “Special Edition Using Oracle R11i” we share our collective implementation experiences in our related Oracle applications fields of expertise. Our mutual customers already rely on our joint efforts to deliver professional results for their organizations. Now they can use this new edition of our book to jump start their internal R11i implementation teams.” Stephen Adams, CEO, BOSS Corporation.

Scheduled for release in September, 2001, "Special Edition Using Oracle R11i" can be ordered from Que Publishing: (Que Publishing, a division of Macmillan Publishing USA, 201 W. 103rd Street, Indianapolis, Indiana 46290) or purchased at the OAUG Exhibit hall from the Project Partners, LLC booth or the BOSS Corporation booth.

About Project Partners, LLC

Project Partners, LLC is a systems integration and consulting company, specializing in the implementation of Oracle Projects and related Oracle financial applications. Founded in 1997 by Randy Egger, former Chief Architect of Oracle Projects (Project Accounting), Project Partners, LLC was formed in response to the growing needs of companies as they shift their operations towards a project orientation.

Headquartered in Half Moon Bay, California, Project Partners has worked with more than 50 clients worldwide, offering functional and technical expertise to client companies who are undergoing full implementations, implementation audits, or who require gap analysis, conversions or upgrades. Project Partners offers clients project management, change management, and systems training, using our in-depth knowledge of Oracle Projects, Oracle Financials, Self-Service technology and other Projects related applications. Their technical team has years of practical experience in the customization of forms and reports, as well as the effective use of client extension technologies. Project Partners has successfully created many legacy interfaces, as well as third party software integrations. With substantial implementation experience in the fields of engineering, entertainment, advertising, construction, telecommunications, government, military and service companies, Project Partners' consultants are recognized as experts in Oracle Projects. Industry experience includes multi-national corporations, foreign national firms as well as U.S. based companies. Project Partners has also developed two proprietary products: OP³, a project management integration between Oracle Projects and Primavera Enterprise; and Project Loader, used to integrate third party and legacy systems with Oracle Projects for both one time conversions as well as on going seamless data sharing.
