Project Partners helps you establish a Project Management Office

Many organizations are establishing a Project Management Office (PMO) to create a foundation for repeated successful execution of projects across the enterprise. The PMO facilitates this goal via ongoing training on project management disciplines and the use of appropriate systems to measure project performance metrics.

Our Project Management Institute (PMI) -certified project management professionals (PMPs) work with your firm to develop a PMO that leverages your existing culture and organization structure. We provide education on project management methodology and best practices as well as instruction on how to leverage your firm’s investment in project management systems. These services will enable your firm to successfully manage complex projects and mature your firm’s project management practices.

A successful Project Portfolio Management environment

We understand the complex factors involved with enterprise-wide project portfolio management initiatives. Our PMI-certified PMPs will work alongside your team to conduct a Current State Assessment to understand your business requirements and culture, and determine where your firm is today with regard to project management maturity. To ensure a successful Project Portfolio Management implementation, it’s imperative to know your organization’s current project management capabilities. We then follow the proven steps of our methodology, while leveraging your systems to deliver a realistic and useful Project Portfolio Management environment.

Primavera and custom-fit training

Project Partners is an Oracle Approved Education Provider, and we deliver the same Primavera training that Oracle provides. Additionally, we frequently customize our training programs to deliver only that content that is relevant to your firm and business processes. We leverage the Current State Assessment and the PPM solution as delivered to ensure your team understands how their business practices will change and improve in your new environment.
